Tain

1b (Brodie) G.L. Wilson. 1933

Will need another season to show itself. It was very lovely but did not prove as exciting as was anticipated, which may be the fault of the anticipator rather than the flower. — BYM in ADYB 1937 p. 48.

3-4. Bred from Beersheeba by a flower whose pollen parent was also Beersheeba: this magnificent flower is the purest uniform white Ajax I have yet seen: a large bold flower of great substance, quality and fine symmetry, with very broad, flat, clean-cut perianth standing at right angles to the bold trumpet; uniform pure self white throughout opens without a trace of color; a most telling show flower; vigorous plant with deep blue-green foliage. — Wilson.

Thalia

5a (van Waveren) 1916

Very elegant and distinctive Triandrus hybrid of good constitution. It produces three or four fine white flowers on a tall stem. - Powell.

A hybrid with Triandrus as one of the parents, carries 3-4 flowers per stem which are snowy white in color, sufficiently robust to thrive in the average garden border, a truly exquisite variety better known as the "Orchid narcissus." - Craig.

Sometimes listed as a small leedsii. Bears two or three pearly white flowers to a stem; it grows well and increases. The perianth is slightly ruffled, and the crown deep and bowl-shaped. - Eliz. Lawrence.

A flower of peculiar charm and exquisite for cutting. 13". - Hunt.

An excellent garden plant growing with great vigor under all conditions, increasing and flowering regularly. It belongs to the section with small cups and is pure white in color. Unless really starved, it usually gives from four to nine flowers on a stalk and these get in their own way and destroy the graceful carriage of each individual with their somewhat reflexing segments. - B.Y.M 1938 ADYB p. 26.

An old favorite. Perianth and trumpet solid rich yellow. Very free flowering. — Waltz.

One of the leaders among the new giant trumpets; deep canary yellow with a paler perianth, the segments of which reach forward about the trumpet, producing a flower of distinct individuality, the trumpet mouth, 2" across, is deeply laciniated. — Ohms.

Is the biggest seller here but I can't say that I am very fond of it. - Calif. 1936 ADYB p. 4

2a (P.D. Williams) P.D. Williams, 1930
(3-4) One of the finest and most brilliant flowers bred by the late P.D. Williams. Very clean-cut, of splendid, firm texture. Perianth beautifully smooth and flat, of King Alfred yellow; cup clear deep orange red. Very vigorous plant on strong stem. - Powell.

A.M. (e) 1932 A.M. Haarlem, 1931

Resembles its kinsman Damson very closely in the color of the cup and has a flatter perianth of deep canary yellow of beautifully smooth texture, making it a singularly brilliant flower. A specimen grown with some protection was selected as the premier bloom of the 1924 London Daffodil Show. - Bowles p. 97.

Outstanding for its cool color, unusual in a jonquil. It has two flowers to a stem. - Eliz. Lawrence.

Perhaps a more reliable doer and freer bloomer than Lanarth (q.v.); its flowers are usually borne in twos and threes, and are shallow cupped, soft clear self yellow of fault-less form and the loveliest quality: both of these plants are great acquisitions. First Class Certificate at Wisley. - G.L. Wilson in 1937 ADYB.

Disappointed me since again it was not sufficiently different from existing varieties. - De Graaff in 1938 ADYB p. 10. Jonquil hybrid.

(2) Broad smooth even perianth and shallow cup of soft clear primrose throughout. Two or more medium-sized charming flowers on a stem. - Powell.

2-3. Similar to Polnesk, it usually has two or more flowers on a stem with broad over-lapping smooth perianth and medium sized shallow crown, pale lemon yellow throughout the whole flower, charming for cutting. - Foote.

Sweetly scented. - van Tubergen

2-3. The best and most vigorous of a race of charming, dainty, fascinating, and distinct Jonquil Hybrids raised by the late Mr. Williams. Broad smooth even perianth, and shallow cup of perfect quality; soft clear lemon-yellow throughout; usually two or more flowers on each stem; characteristic rush-like foliage: a delightful variant from the larger and heavier flowers of other sections. - Wilson.

2-3. One of the grandest trumpets I have raised: very tall noble plant carrying its great flowers on two-foot stems, head and shoulders above its neighbors: immensely broad flat much overlapping, white perianth of great substance and splendid boldly flanged lemon trumpet; a magnificent Daffodil. - Wilson.

za (P.D. Williams) P.D. Williams. 1930.

Exceeded expectations. It was chosen for various reasons, among them the report of the long stem. Here it grew a good 20" with rigorous stems topped by well-formed flowers of a good yellow with a red-edged cup. If Penquite does not develop more color in the future, this variety will easily outdo it for general garden value, but another season may alter all the readings. – BYM in ADVB 1937 p. 48.

True Charm

4 a (Engleheart) Mrs. F. S. Foote, 1931

1-2. The smallest and daintiest of Englehearts new pink-toned Leedsiis, though the trumpet or crown is long enough to also place it in the trumpet class. The flowers open for me about April 20 and last fully ten days, holding their pink color to the very last. The stem is only 12 or 15" long, but of good strength..... The periath is soft primrose, the long trumpet opens a deep primrose-orange-pink about the brim of the trumpet, which gradually spreads until the whole trumpet is a deep pinkish yellow which lasts until the flower is gone. A charming lovely flower quite different from any other.- Foote.
