I hope you like our 1989 catalogue. We are always trying to improve the layout and accuracy of descriptions so you may well find that some things have been moved. Do not despair, they are there somewhere. We have again managed to find some exciting additions and also increase the number of pictures which I know from your letters is much appreciated.

As you will see the name on the front has changed but our aim of supplying quality bulbs of new and old varieties remains the same. Now that the stocks have acclimatised to the cold east winds here in Lincolnshire we are getting much better yields and I feel better quality. This has enabled us to keep price rises to a minimum and in some cases we have even managed to lower prices.

I must admit I am not entirely sorry to see the end of 1988. The year started well with some very successful shows at the R.H.S. Halls and a Large Gold Medal for both our daffodil and lily stands at Harrogate. Then ten days before Chelsea our cold store broke down so that we lost many of the earlier varieties that we had been holding and of course the quality of the others suffered. Then in September just as we began to despatch our orders the post strike began. Although it only lasted two weeks it severely disrupted the business. Not only were we unable to comply with requests for specific delivery dates but it also seems that more parcels than usual went missing and so I must apologise to customers who were disappointed as a result.

1989 has started remarkably mild and dry so I hope that it is an omen for things to come. I hope your garden gives you much pleasure in the year to come.

TRIPARTITE

5-6 April Tears x Bacarrat.

Late flowering, strong plant with an outstanding rate of increase and prolific blooming capability. Most of the 10-12" stems carry two flowers, but it can have three, secondary stems will usually carry one. The colour is a uniform shining lemon gold. Petals are of a good form and texture, the crown is split following Bacarrat's lead, being heavily lobed and laid back on the petals, anthers and stigma protruding. The effect is graceful and utterly pleasing even to those to whom split corona daffodils are anathema. It is most unusual, a unique and magical flower.

The demand is likely to far outstrip our limited supply. The magnificent rate of increase is the only reason for the relatively modest price. each £20 - 3 for £50.

Please order early.
