Narcissi

Trumpet Daffodils

APRIL FLOWERING. PACKED AND PRICED PER 50, UNLESS OTHERWISE NOTED.

For centuries, Trumpet Daffodils, also referred to as Long Cupped Narcissi, have been the most popular of all Narcissi for bold, impactful display and naturalizing. They are classified by their trumpet-shaped cups that are as long as, if not longer than, the length of their perianth segments (petals). The individual characteristics of each variety are unique, however subtle. Cups vary from trumpet to cylindrical to funnel shapes, with edges that are straight, flanged or rolled and rims that are wavy, frilled, lobed or smooth. The shape of the perianth segments determines the overall form of each flower: as a result, some are more star-shaped or round, while others appear more like double triangles. Perianths may be reflexed, inflexed or spreading. Varieties with pink cups should be grown in areas of filtered sunlight so their light salmon, apricot-pink, coral or soft old rose cups can be protected from direct sunlight that would bleach out their pinkness. DNII bulb size: 14/16 cm, unless otherwise noted. Plant 6" to 8" deep and 6" apart. HZ: 3-7. Royal Horticultural Society Division 1. Height: 18" to 20".

Arkle: (1 Y-Y) One of the best yellow Trumpets available, this 1968 J. Lionel Richardson hybrid has a huge, 5" golden-yellow flower with a perfectly formed, flouncy perianth and a long, cylindrical cup with a flanged and wavy edge.
