

This is the eighth year for Bonnie Brae Gardens. Each and every customer gained through these years is appreciated and we cannot express adequately our thanks for your support. 1984 was the year that our dear friend and mentor, Murray Evans launched us into the commercial side of daffodils. How very much we miss him, as do all who knew him! Murray is a living presence and will always remain so in our minds and hearts.

Although my name is prominent in this catalog, this is a joint venture with my husband, Frank. He is a partner in every sense of the word, thank goodness! We plan, plant, dig, clean, inspect and ship, all by hand, thus ensuring you, the customer, of a personalized, quality controlled operation. We take great pleasure in supplying you with healthy, sound, and accurately named bulbs of blooming size.

We are not a large grower, as you can judge by our list. Some of you know many of the flowers that we raise, like old friends. These good cultivars may not be the newest, but they are dependable and have remained steady performers on the show bench and in the garden for years, giving them an almost classic standing. A show may last a day or two, but ones' pleasure from many of these daffodils will extend over many days or weeks, in the garden. Spring is a renewing time for all of us, and daffodils in the garden, and cut flowers for indoor decoration, makes spring a memorable season.

This listing contains only those bulbs that we have in sufficient quantity to offer for sale. If we only have a limited number of saleable bulbs, this will be reflected in a higher price. As quantities increase, the price will be reduced as rapidly as possible, so that our customers can have a more reasonable selection.

Realizing the increased interest in miniature daffodils, we are working diligently to offer a wider selection of named varieties. The intermediate sized daffodils will continue to be featured, as they offer much for the gardener, in that they are often easier to grow, are often hardier than miniatures, can be good naturalizers, and will fit quite nicely into a small landscape plan.

Your gardening friendship is important and meaningful to us. We want to hear from you, pro or con, so that we can continue to give you satisfaction. Whenever you are in the area, please give us an opportunity to meet you, no matter what time of year. You will always be welcomed.
