John Lipscomb’s Field of Dreams

Becky Fox Matthews
Brentwood, TN

About 26 miles north of the hustle and bustle of Atlanta, Georgia, is the quiet, peaceful property where John Lipscomb lives. Cross over the rippling creek beside his house and pause for a moment to admire the daffodils and wildflowers in bloom along the creek bank. Then wander on up the hill through John’s pasture where you will find thousands of daffodils in bloom with each cultivar’s group individually labeled. John likes to share his garden, inviting school groups, members of his church family and his daffodil friends to come and visit anytime. A school group had recently visited and under their teacher’s instruction they sketched and painted the daffodils. John lets them pick them, too.

His wife, Claire, started John’s interest in daffodils. John was in the Navy, which meant frequent moves during his career, but Claire loved daffodils so much she would plant them wherever they were stationed, even when they knew they wouldn’t be there the next spring to see them bloom. When John retired from the Navy as a Captain in 1974 they searched for a place with land and eventually moved to the property in Alpharetta. The first spring they found daffodils already on the property along the creek bank and in the pasture. They identified some of those as ‘Empress’, an 1869 bicolor, N.odorus, and N.comparabilus.

As they started buying more daffodils to plant, they chose the least expensive ones so they could afford to plant as many as possible each year. These tended to be the older daffodils now known as Historics. John would buy 10 or so of each variety and plant them in the pasture in a clump, each bulb 8-10” apart. As the bulbs multiplied they were dug and spread out. John still uses this method of increasing his collection today, planting more daffodils every year.

When I visited his field of daffodils in March of this year most of his labels were gone. The pasture had been the setting for his daughter’s wedding the weekend before and John had taken all the markers up so the background wouldn’t look like “a mouse’s cemetery.” Using his hand-drawn maps, his printouts from the ADS Illustrated Data Bank and his familiarity with his flowers, John replaced many of the missing labels as we photographed the flowers. John is working on a computer database of digital photos of each cultivar. Cultivars in the pasture are planted in similar groupings of reverse bicolors, trumpets and large cups, small cups, pink-cupped, orange-cupped, yellows, bicolors, and histories. Some areas are planted by division, such as jonquils and cyclamineus.

For years John has hired high school students to help him dig and plant. His current helper, 17-year-old Michael Abernathy, entered flowers in the Georgia Daffodil Society show this spring for the first time and won the Best Youth ribbon with ‘White Plume’. Michael has been learning about daffodils by helping John double dig his raised beds, planting bulbs, and making labels.

John has a large area of raised beds on the other side of his house from the pasture. If he plants daffodils in the pasture and they don’t do well, he takes them out and moves them to the raised beds to try and increase their numbers again. He also keeps records of the daffodils that have not survived his Georgia climate so he will not order those varieties again. Two of John’s favorite suppliers of daffodils are Brian Duncan (now with Ringhaddy Daffodils) and Elise Havens of Mitsch Daffodils. John praises the quality of the Mitsch daffodils that adapt so well from the Oregon climate to Georgia’s. He considers Elise’s seedlings she sells by the dozen as one of the best bargains around and also likes to try the Australian daffodils Elise offers.

John was President of the Georgia Daffodil Society from 1995 to 2002. He was also a regional director of ADS for three years and on the ADS nominating committee. He participates in local shows, not only by showing his daffodils, but also by helping to staff the show to answer visitors’ questions about daffodils.

From the movie Field of Dreams came the phrase “build it and they will come.” In John’s field of daffodils the hope of all daffodil enthusiasts everywhere is realized: plant them and they will bloom! And if you are ever drawn to the area during daffodil season, perhaps to visit the Georgia Daffodil Society’s Atlanta show, take time to visit John and his daffodils. Note: On September 02, 2004, HGTV first aired an episode of Gardener’s Diary on John and his daffodils. Reruns of the series are now airing.

[On the back cover of this issue of The Daffodil Journal are scenes of John Lipscomb’s daffodil-strewn hillside and of the gardener himself, diligently documenting his cultivars.

Perhaps the Most Difficult Ribbon to Win

Most daffodil exhibitors with even a little experience have “dream” collections they aspire to win. They plot and plan and purchase toward their goal, and usually achieve it, in a year or two.

But if your goal is the ADS Purple Ribbon, things are not so simple. “Purple,” with all its connotations of royalty and pride, also represents the pinnacle of a two-stage effort, the outcome of which which cannot be predicted or second-guessed.

First, a five-stem entry must be the blue-ribbon winner in one of a specified array of classes. Then it must be the champion collection of all the blue ribbon winning entries in perhaps a dozen classes.

The official designation reads: “The Purple Ribbon is awarded to the best collection of five different standard daffodils as specified in the schedule.” It continues, “Collections eligible for other ADS ribbons are ineligible for this ribbon,” which means that the Red-White-Blue, Maroon, and Youth five-stem winners cannot win Purple. Also, the particular show schedule must indicate which specific classes are eligible to win the Purple Ribbon.

Purple Ribbons were awarded in 40 of the 42 shows in 2006. In any show, the largest group of contenders is generally the five-stem winners in each division. This year, Purple winners came from Divisions 1,2,3,4,6,7,8,9, and 11, with Div. 6 represented with four.

A few larger shows have their own International collection awards. Three of these won the Purple this spring. Many local shows have their own collection awards, usually very colorful—red and orange cup groupings are special crowd-pleasers. These are often named for local society luminaries. Eleven Purple awards went to the winners of these International classes.

The somewhat surprising Purple winners in the last few years, evoking a double-take from some judges, were the winning Intermediate collections, which went on to take five Purple Ribbons in 2006. Somehow most of us had forgotten there is no ADS award yet for the five-stem Intermediate collection. Now that exhibitors have discovered this Purple gold mine, there may never be.

There’s many a way to win a Purple Ribbon, if you have elegant daffodils, superbly staged. Enjoy the array of Purple Ribbon winners on pages 8, 10, and 11, and gain inspiration for 2007.

Quick Reference Guide for DaffSeek

Nancy Tackett
Internet Services

Some of you have asked for a ‘quick start’ for using DaffSeek, so here are a few steps to get you started. The data in DaffSeek is a combination of information you would normally find in a copy of the Show and Grow and when available, there may be seed and pollen parent data. We hope there will be one or more photos of the daffodil you are searching for.

To begin, start your favorite web browser, and go to http://daffseek.org (bookmark this - it is new!) and follow these steps:

To find a unique daffodil, when you do not know the entire name:

1. In ‘Flower Name’, key in the part of the flower name you know such as ‘dream’ and press the enter key or click on the ‘Submit Query’ button on the bottom.
2. You will see a list appear.
3. Click on the blue words ‘American Dream’.
4. You will see detailed information and small photos.
5. Click on one of the photos to enlarge it. In fact, click twice, as it has two sizes.
6. To go back to the list of 61 items, click on the green ‘Back to List’ button.
7. If you do not want to go back to the list, but look for another daffodil, click on the blue bar ‘Enter a New Query.’
8. Your previous query you entered will be displayed in the screen, so if you want to refine your original search, leave the word ‘dream’ in Flower Name and put a ‘Y’ in Perianth.
9. You will see a list of 20 items that have ‘dream’ in the name and yellow anywhere in the perianth.
10. ‘American Dream’ is printed in green since you have already looked at this entry.
11. Anytime you want to remove the contents on the query form to build a new query, click on the gold button at the bottom of the form ‘Clear Form.’

The DaffSeek Query screen has fourteen fields you can use to customize your query. To quickly build a query, there are six primary dropdown boxes and two radio buttons. If you want to know all the ADS approved miniatures, use the ‘Height’ drop down box and select ‘1’. This will return a list of all these miniatures. To find historic daffodils, use the ‘Year Modifier’ drop down box beside the year. ♡
From the President’s Desk

By the time you read this, the ADS office move from Ohio to Georgia will have been successfully completed. Jaydee Ager has been totally absorbed in making this happen, along with converting to a new software system. Nothing like this goes without glitches, so be patient with her in her new role as Executive Director. The same applies to Spencer Rainey in his job as our new Treasurer.

Spencer’s Financial Policy and Review Committee is now in place. The committee members include Jaydee Ager, Bill Lee, Bob Spotts, Nancy Mott, Kathy Andersen, and Jim Morris. They would like your input, so please contact them with your suggestions.

June and July always mean daffodil digging, and I hope you’ve all recovered from the backache. This year I’ve dug more than I ever had, and will have five hundred or more to give away. Do you ever think about where some of your bulbs are scattered? I do.

This year, enclosed in a Christmas card from a friend from Virginia Beach, were pictures of clumps of hundreds of blooms propagated from just a few bulbs I had given him years ago. They were varieties that had been sent to me in Texas in the mid-eighties from my mother’s garden in Virginia.

September is the month we anxiously await bulb shipments. And, if we haven’t already done this, we are preparing new beds and refreshing others. It’s interesting to follow the discussions on Daffnet

About the various ways we each have for preparing the beds. Be sure to check out Daffnet in the next few weeks for tips on bed preparation and bulb planting. If you’re not a member of Daffnet, do join. Go to www.daffodilusa.org, click on Daffnet, and follow the instructions. And when you join, speak up and ask questions. Many people will profit from the answers to your questions.

While you’re on the Internet, check out Daffseek.org, our new online Daffodil Photobase. It is a fantastic site. Many thanks to all involved in its development, especially Ben Blake and Nancy Tackett, its creators.

Happy digging!

John Reed has grown and bred daffodils on a scale like no other in America. He has hybridized daffodils in the quiet town of Niles, Michigan, for 40 years, where he is a physician specializing in Urgent Care family practice. He has found that this type of work allows him some time flexibility to be able to devote the attention needed to do his voluminous crosses during daffodil breeding season.

That season can be extended or quite short. The timing varies up to three weeks depending on the season and weather. When pollen or a suitable parent is ready and time is short, John has rigged mobile lighting to effect crosses when the rest of us are asleep. He has found that it helps simplify the processes as he is forced to observe the few flowers he is currently concentrating on and not the myriad ones around him.

He grew up an only child in the South Bend, Indiana, area. Many names of the daffodils he has named feature geography, businesses or people from the surrounding area. As a child, he spent time in flower gardens and liked the daffodils. After graduation, he purchased a range of spring bulbs. He found that the daffodils were the only ones not bothered by pests, and had a great visual impact.

In 1971 John began searching out daffodils and bought his first better ones. He acquired 103 cultivars before he had garden space of his own to plant them. They arrived in batches until late in the autumn. This year found him planting daffodils on his birthday, December 3.
John joined the ADS in 1972. In 1976 he got acquainted with Venice Brink and Helen Link and did his first crosses. He managed to obtain an Externship in the spring of 1977 to further his medical training in the Portland area. Most of his time was spent in the hospital learning his profession. But not all of it.

On his days off, he met Father Athanasius Bucholz, and the pair traveled thought the area visiting growers and acquiring bulbs begged or bought. It was on one of these trips that he was allowed to make crosses by Murray and Estella Evans. That spring he attended his first ADS convention. There he met Brian Duncan, Nell Richardson, Tom Throckmorton, Bill Ticknor, David Sheppard, and Grant and Amy Mitsch.

In 1979 he began to do larger scale crosses including those containing over 1000 seeds. In 1993, he planted 50,000 seeds from that year’s crosses. He typically collects seeds from 175 crosses per year. He has two places where he grows his daffodils. One named Oakwood I is sandy loam with 7 paddocks lined with spruce and white pine trees for wind protection. His breeding is primarily done where his imposing home serves as a gateway to the fields of his latest seedlings. Oakwood II contains clay loam a few miles down Bertrand Road in Niles, Michigan, and contains the tree area, the hillside and two sectioned growing areas. The tree area is where latest cultivars from around the world and his latest seedlings and selections flourish under the immense canopies of mature oak trees.

In my estimation, John has done three major things of import to the development of the daffodil. These include: 1. Mass crossing, 2. Repository of cultivars, and 3. Distributions of daffodils.

John has attempted large crosses to get color and form breaks from highly colored flowers into show quality flowers. These large crosses involve up to 6,000 seeds in one cross. This allows seeing a more full expression of genetic potential. He has done enough crosses to make breakthroughs in many color combinations. This includes cultivars of 1Y-R, 1 O-O, 1 W-R, 1 W-O, 1Y-P, 3 W-P, 2 P-P, really excellent bicolors. and recently, green cupped flowers. While John does not often show his flowers, he does choose good form and has excellent examples in most color codes. He has flowers that could be registered in all divisions except Division 10.

John has collected thousands of cultivars from all over the world including many rare things. He maintains these cultivars primarily for breeding material. One field contains over 3000 cultivars. John has actively maintained these clones and a few of them make it to his list each year.
John generously donates excess stock and seedlings to several daffodil societies each year. Our current dig yielded over a hundred named cultivars for our local society. John also sends breeding material worldwide to make sure that the material gets in the hands of breeders. He knows most breeders around the world and what they are interested in breeding. He forwards clones he hopes will be of use to them. Thousands of bulbs have been sent to people worldwide to this end.

When asked what his favorite was, John replied, “Seedling 93-55-1 (‘Ken’s Favorite’ x ‘Quasar’) x (‘Ken’s Favorite’ x ‘Kerstin’), a 3 W-R from pink breeding with an incredible round form. Each year the blooms get better and better.”

The daffodil has a bright future due to the quiet work done by John Reed.

Some Thoughts on Recruiting and Maintaining ADS Members

Bob Spotts
Membership Chairman

Please remind me: recruiting new members is not the purpose of the ADS – it’s promoting daffodils! So I shouldn’t evaluate the value of an ADS activity by whether it will attract new members, but rather by whether it will extend the awareness of our flower.

But in practical terms, the ability of the ADS to promote daffodils – to publish The Daffodil Journal, to hold daffodil shows, to hold an annual Convention, to maintain an ADS website, to make and distribute media presentations, to maintain “Daffnet,” to identify and advertise daffodil cultivars of special merit, to honor those persons making contributions to daffodils, to support daffodil-related research, and to do the numerous other things the ADS does – requires a sufficient number of ADS members to provide necessary funds (through dues), to maintain an administrative structure, and to perform the tasks involved. Without enough members, the ADS cannot function and its promotion of daffodils will cease.

The membership of the ADS steadily declined during the ‘80s and ‘90s. This fearsome trend has been stopped in the past few years, likely due to an effective campaign by the previous Membership Chair to recognize new members, and to urge current members to recruit acquaintances and to remind other members to renew.

We have been concentrating actively on strengthening our membership where our members live. We must continue this essential campaign. But, in many ADS Regions, there are areas in which daffodils do or could thrive, yet which have no local daffodil society and few (if any) ADS members. Within my own Pacific Region, this would apply to Idaho, Montana, Utah, Colorado, Washington, and much of Arizona and Alaska! What can the ADS do to promote growing daffodils in such areas? And through success in getting people to grow daffodils, to gain new ADS members who live there?

Establishing a public daffodil garden and holding a daffodil show in promising areas are tactics that are being tried. The 2007 ADS Convention will be in Tacoma, Washington – a prime area for growing daffodils, but one with no local daffodil group or ADS members.
On the East Coast, ADS-approved daffodil shows are commonly sponsored by Garden Clubs. The challenge is to entice Garden Club members into participation in the ADS.

Some places, such as Florida, have an active local daffodil society but have few ADS members. Many of the ADS’ activities seem irrelevant to FDS. How can the ADS support the local society’s activities there to the two societies’ mutual benefit?

My Membership Committee will be identifying and also proposing actions to promote daffodils in promising areas, with the intended outcome of locating new enthusiasts for the ADS. We are most open to your suggestions.

New ADS members who have joined in the last three months include the following, listed alphabetically by states. Seek out your newly daffodil-minded neighbors and welcome them!

Tacoma, Washington, the crystal city of the Northwest, will be the site of ADS Convention on April 20-22, 2007. The city, thirty miles south of Seattle, is renowned as the home of Dale Chihuly’s startling, world-famous glass art. The surrounding countryside is a veritable paradise for growing daffodils.

Each Spring, Tacoma and nearby communities host the Puyallup Daffodil Festival, a regional celebration of daffodils. We’ll immerse ourselves in the Festival for part of our events, enjoying the daffodil parade and the Festival’s hospitality, as well as visiting the Puyallup Spring Fair. The Pasadena Rose Parade has its unexcelled beauty, but here in Tacoma the parade floats will be decorated with daffodils! An afternoon at the fair in nearby Puyallup will provide collectors with booths of daffodil-related collectibles, and take many of us back to the relaxed days of our youth visiting the county fair.

Our ADS Convention will be in the Tacoma Sheraton Hotel, where the Daffodil Festival is also headquartered. The Festival has responded to our presence by inviting us to share in their Hospitality Suite, in which the bar will at open at 2pm! Talk about Social Hour!

We’ll experience Chihuly glass art up close: a visit to the Museum of Glass, a walk across the Bridge-of-Glass which is 500 feet long with wonders along the sides and overhead, and a stop to contemplate the Crystal Towers. Bring your cameras or camcorders – this will be unlike anything you’ve seen before!

We’ll marvel at the beauty of the Northwest by visiting Point Defiance Park, where from the beach we can gaze out across Puget Sound toward the Pacific Ocean beyond. Authorized by Teddy Roosevelt and recognized... as one of the nation’s most beautiful public parks, Point Defiance features numerous horticultural gardens – camellias, rhododendrons, roses, and many other flowers. If weather dictates indoor activities, there are a top-class zoo and an aquarium.

Some of our other daffodil activities will feature exciting advances being made in this 21st Century – new forms and colors coming in daffodils, break-throughs in searching for and viewing daffodils online, and the marvelous photography possible using a digital camera.

The Convention will be during late-season for locals, so their daffodils will tend toward poets and other season-ending blooms. Exhibitors from the Midwest and East Coast, we urge you to fill the Show!

The Convention will be Friday through Sunday, and Judging School II is planned for Monday. If there is sufficient interest, an optional, all-day bus tour to Mount St. Helens will be arranged for Monday. Keep abreast of the news, for recently there have been signs of activity in the Mount St. Helens dome.

The Convention will provide a unique opportunity for you to take that Northwest vacation you have dreamed about. The Olympic National Park, snow-capped Mt. Rainier, and exciting Mt. St. Helens are within an easy drive or bus ride. The ferry across Puget Sound through the San Juan Islands to the Emerald City of Victoria, Canada shouldn’t be missed. Once in the English city of Victoria, there are the Butchart Gardens to enjoy and High Tea to experience at the Empress Hotel. The beautiful cities of Vancouver, Canada and Seattle – home of the Space Needle – should be enjoyed as well. Might I even mention an Alaskan cruise?

Start with us at the ADS Convention 2007, and then let your imagination take you away.

And if one daffodil excursion in 2007 isn’t enough for you……

THINK NEW ZEALAND NEXT SEPTEMBER!

The Australasian Daffodil Championship and Convention will be held in Hamilton, New Zealand, September 14-16, 2007 For early information, contact Tracey Hooker: bthooker@xtra.co.nz.

Sidney Pierce DuBose died suddenly just one week after his 84th birthday. His intensive, focused and creative daffodil breeding program has come to a conclusion after 36 consecutive seasons.

A number of Sid’s daffodil introductions have impeccable credentials in the garden and also as show winners. Daffodils such as ‘Dove Song,’ ‘Geometrics,’ ‘Nob Hill,’ ‘Brooke Ager,’ ‘Raspberry Rose,’ ‘Bright Spangles,’ ‘Work of Art,’ ‘Random Event,’ ‘Gilt Complex,’ and ‘Jubilant Spirit’ are eagerly sought by knowledgeable exhibitors.

Sid was a classically trained horticulturist with a vast knowledge and a deep love of plants. For more than thirty years, Sid and the late Ben Hager were owners of Melrose Gardens near Stockton, California. Ben was to garner an unprecedented five Dykes medals for his iris hybrids. Sid enjoyed the same type of international acclaim for his daffodil breeding. A highlight of the 1989 convention in San Francisco was a tour visit to Melrose Gardens.

Due to Sid’s wide-ranging interests, his breeding goals for daffodils were many and varied. A few of his main areas of breeding interest included: large cup pinks with pure white perianths, poetaz narcissus, very early flowering pink daffodils, tazettas both species and hybrids, N. jonquilla hybrids, intermediates, and yellow/pinks in all divisions. He well understood the necessity of breeding daffodils that tolerated or even flourished in the heat of an average California spring, and often stated, “Daffodils MUST be good garden plants first and foremost.

This spring during peak bloom I spent several days at Sid’s place, during which we marked many selections. Many truly exciting world-class daffodils are in the pipeline which will further increase his stature as a breeder of truly superior show daffodils.

Memorial gifts may be made to the ADS Color in the Journal Fund.

Steve Vinisky
Charles Wheatley

Charles Wheatley, of Mongo, Indiana, was devoted to the daffodil and to furthering knowledge of daffodil growing. He was noted for the size and quality of his bulbs, which he attributed to his meticulous planting techniques.

Charles was an active, vocal ADS member, and a dedicated judge and judging instructor. He took particular pride in his ability to teach point scoring and shared judging information as generously as he shared bulbs.

Ted Snazelle remembers with great appreciation Charles’ prompt and efficient work in completing the first full-color membership brochure in 1986, in the beginning of Ted’s ADS presidency.

Charles, together with Dave Karnstedt, was influential in the establishing of the Northeast Illinois Daffodil Society in Rockford. The next year he was a prime mover in the beginning of the Midwest Daffodil Society, based at the Chicago Botanic Garden. Charles was president of this organization for many years. He was also a force in the establishment of the Saint Louis Daffodil group.

Always interested in hybridizing as well as exhibiting, in late years Charles focused on the Rose Ribbon. Some of his notable registrations include ‘David Adams,’ ‘Circle City,’ ‘Smooth Trumpet’ and ‘Pink Sun.’

Charles’ daughter Sunday, for whom ‘Pink Sunday’ is named, is donating Charles’ breeding notes and records to the ADS library. She requests that any memorials be made to the ADS and be earmarked for preservation of his historical records.

Tom Handley

Tom Handley, of Great Britain, died in August. Tom and his wife Maureen were daffodil world travelers, including many ADS conventions. They were members of the Northern California Daffodil Society, which they attended often and worked diligently.
Pat Bates

Pat Bates, of Nashville, Tennessee, died on July 4, at age 88. Pat was an ADS Life Member, an Accredited Judge, and a past Southeast Regional Vice-President.

Dick Frank remembers Pat as a good friend and points out the pioneer work she led in recognition of the Intermediate daffodil. She was deeply involved with the Middle Tennessee Daffodil Society, its annual show, and several ADS conventions in Nashville. “Many years before any other show,” Dick notes, “Nashville had classes for intermediates, and Pat, working with Jeanie Driver, distributed a long list of potential intermediates.”

Ted Snazelle, who contributed the picture above, taken at the 1995 Dallas convention, remembers Pat’s warm welcome to him as a student at Belmont College, where she was head librarian, and later, her friendship through the Middle Tennessee Daffodil Society.

Expressions of sympathy may be sent to her family through her son William N. Bates, 3600 Sperry Ave., Nashville, TN 37215.

Betty Jean Forster

Betty Jean Forster, with her sisters-in-law, was heavily involved in forming the Oregon Daffodil Society. Her unexpected death is a huge loss for the ODS.

Betty Jean and her husband Len have been a good portion of the backbone of ODS, serving as presidents, planning shows, being very involved in the bulb sales, and helping to handle properties. She and Len were always available to do whatever was needed. With Kirby Fong, Betty Jean was co-chairman of the 2000 ADS World Convention. She was Pacific Regional Vice-President in 1994-1997.

Betty Jean was an inspiration not only to the ODS but to us personally. Her attitude was always selfless and modest, never wanting the credit or praise for any of her long hours of work. It was always her desire to help others to develop interest in a flower.

Top Show Winners in 2006

Whether you are still making out your bulb orders or just wondering which cultivars to plan for an important collection class, you are surely quite interested in how your favorites ranked in this season’s shows.

The first number indicates blue ribbons in 2006; in the brackets, the first number is the blue ribbons in 2000, the second number, the blue ribbons in 2003, when the last tabulation appeared.

Charles Wheatley, for many years a dedicated Judging Schools instructor, insisted that this tabulation was “The single most important page in the whole year of the Daffodil Journal.” It was included once again this year because he so urgently requested it.

Florida Daffodil Society – Florida Master Gardener Outreach Project

Sara Van Beck
Atlanta, GA

In the fall of 2005, Linda Van Beck of the Florida Daffodil Society (FDS) spoke at the Florida state convention of Master Gardeners. Excitement was rampant amongst county extension office staff and master gardeners, and so a project was quickly hatched.

IFAS, the Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences (The University of Florida) staffs Cooperative Extension Offices in Florida counties, and started the state’s Master Gardener program in 1979.

The FDS has worked with two central Florida extension offices for years in Bunnell (near St. Augustine) and Apopka (near Orlando). Established north Florida daffodil demonstration gardens at IFAS Extension offices are located in Gainesville, Milton, Pensacola, Tallahassee and Taveres (near Orlando); new demonstration gardens are located at the Duval and St. Johns Extension offices (both in the Jacksonville area). Public plantings may be found in DeFuniak Springs and Marianna in west Florida, and at Washington Oaks State Park along the Atlantic coast.

The latest FDS-IFAS project is a concerted effort to broaden daffodil growing across central Florida in AHS Heat Zone 10. The goal is to determine just how far south daffodils will bloom. Thus, the FDS and Master Gardeners have launched the Daffodil Project, 2005 – 2009. Ten cultivars have been planted at county Extension offices and Master Gardener sites across central Florida. Extension office sites planted in 2005 are: Citrus, Brevard, Lake, Marion, Pasco, Seminole, and Sumter; the Master Gardener sites are: Nature Coast Botanical Gardens (Hernando), Orange and Volusia. The cultivars are: ‘Carlton’, ‘Erlicheer’, ‘February Gold’, ‘Grand Soleil d’Or’, ‘Ice Follies’, ‘Nat Williams’, ‘Nony’, ‘Saint Keverne’, ‘Sweetness’ and ‘Ziva’. Additional counties and cultivars will be planted in 2006.

While this doesn’t sound too exciting to some, central Floridians continue to boost FDS membership to new levels. Individual FDS members and IFAS staff are trialing tazettas as far south as Lakeland, Hillsboro County (Tampa) and Sarasota. Master gardener outreach is imperative, as they are the first trained help the public speaks with when calling an extension office with questions. Bad daffodil advice is rampant in Florida, so a well educated master gardener is a vital piece of the good daffodil advice puzzle.
The Advantages of Open Ground vs. Pots for Miniatures

Delia Bankhead
Hendersonville, NC

I have been growing miniatures for about thirty years. Mostly, I have grown in raised beds with 8” x 8” timber borders, and have planted the little bulbs in plastic berry baskets to keep them confined, and to assure that all are found at lifting time. I just dig out a row, level the bottom, place the baskets, and half fill them with soil and a layer of sharp sand before placing the bulbs. I cover the row with soil from the next row.

Some of the ones that must be dry all summer are planted in heavy duty black perforated orchid pots and sunk in the miniature bed so that they can be lifted without too much disturbance to the soil. (Berry baskets “leak” too much soil through the summer to lift them intact. However, the berry baskets, being so much more open, produce better bulbs than those in the orchid pots) I put the pots I lift in the shed until September, when they go back into the beds.

For several years, I tried growing about half the bulbs in pots that were not sunk in soil, but in a protected frame with a gravel base. I used the same type soil (a gritty compost) as is in the bed. But when I dumped the pots, the bulbs were much smaller than those of the same cultivar that had been in the open ground, and the roots were thin and few compared to the ones from open ground. This was made stunningly clear to me when I received some bulbs of ‘Crevette’ that year, and the contrast in size was remarkable. The skins on my bulbs were a rich, shiny russet, and those from Jim a dull brown. I had no more doubts about the best way to grow miniatures in a reasonably temperate climate. (Zone 6b-7a at 220 degrees elevation, with the average winter lows at 15 to 25 degrees F.)

I have found that miniatures in Divisions 1,5, and 6 enjoy a cooler location – they actually like cold weather, and don’t do as well in warm climates. I put these in the coolest location I have. So I suspect that Southern growers might do well to plant these divisions on a north-facing slope. I probably should give my miniature tazettas some protection from cold, but they must do as best they can in my open beds, albeit at the southern end. They manage to flower reasonably well, though generally with fewer florets than others grown in warmer places. ✿

In the fall of 2005, Northern Ireland daffodil hybridizer Brian Duncan donated his stock of two seedlings, Duncan 2237 and Duncan 2682, to ADS youth members. Mary Lou Gripshover had an idea for ADS youth to name the two seedlings and for ADS to register the names and Brian agreed. One Duncan seedling bulb was mailed to each youth member.

The fall ADS youth newsletter included an article about daffodil seedlings and challenged our youth to nominate names for the two Duncan seedlings. A postcard ballot of submitted names was mailed to each youth member in May of 2006. Many ballots were returned, the results are in, and the daffodils have been registered with the RHS! A Certificate of Registration will be sent to the two ADS youth members who submitted a winning name.

Duncan 2237 is now named ‘Pretty ‘N Pink.’ Thanks to Ashley McKenzie from Madison, Mississippi, for coming up with this lovely name for the 2W-P flower! Brian Duncan made the cross between ‘Clouds Rest’ and ‘June Lake’ in 1994 and saw its first bloom in 2000. In his notes he had described it having a perianth of “glistening pure white, cup deep pink, sage green eye” and as “very vigorous.” A flower of this seedling was entered in the Central Mississippi Daffodil Society’s 2006 show at the Northpark Mall in Ridgeland, by Ben Lunsford from Brandon, Mississippi. Ben’s entry won Best Youth Bloom in the show! (See photograph on page 73)

‘Cremesicle’ is the new name for Duncan 2682. Congratulations to Amanda McKinney from Brentwood, Tennessee, for nominating this winning name! Cremesicle is a 2W-WWO and its parents are ‘Lady Ann’ and ‘Eastern Promise.’ The cross was made in 1995 and it first flowered in 2001. Here are some of Brian’s comments on it: “Salmon/orange rim… pink pink orange corona… nice, showable.” Thanks to all the youth members who suggested names and those who participated in the voting! I hope we will see many ‘Pretty ‘N Pink’ and ‘Cremesicle’ flowers entered in future ADS shows by our youth members! And here is some good news for our newest ADS youth members—Brian discovered one more row of ‘Pretty ‘N Pink.’ He will donate the bulbs to ADS this fall to be sent to new youth members.

Fall is a great time to involve youth in daffodils. Share some bulbs with young people you know – family members, youth who enter your local show, local youth groups. Help them plant their bulbs and be sure they know how to label and map their plantings. Growing daffodils is a fun activity and can teach basic science process skills such as organization, observation, measurement, and explanation. The National Gardening Association believes “gardening boosts kids’ interest in school and learning, improves their attitudes about eating healthful foods and caring for the environment, helps them develop social skills and self-esteem.” Gardening can cure what some are calling “nature-deficit disorder.” We have youth members who assist with show set-up, who are approved ADS judges, who prepare educational exhibits for shows, who start their own daffodil youth groups, and who have named daffodils!

If you know youth who have an interest in daffodils, encourage that interest. Involve them in your fall planting plans and reward them with an ADS youth membership (available up to the age of 20 at time of application for only $5 a year.) Encourage our youth and they will continue to break new ground!

Youth Members in Ohio a Fourth Generation Connection to the Worldwide Community of Daffodil Growers

Two Chillicothe-area cousins, Rachel Beery and Ethan Quinn Johnson, are the fourth generation of a family connection which stretches around the daffodil world.

Ethan, age five, won Youth Best Bloom in the Adena show with a stem of ‘Betty Beery’, a 3 Y-YYO named for his great-grandmother by Australian hybridizer, L.P. Dettman, who visited the Beery family on his 1979 world trip, including weeks in Ohio.

Rachel, a fourth-grader, is the youngest member of the Adena Daffodil Society. She is pictured on page 73 with the Tolley Award, for her bloom of ‘High Tower.’ Also at the Adena show this year, in Chillicothe, Rachel won the Youth Best Vase of Three with ‘Lemon Sparks,’ 4 Y-Y. In the Columbus show, she won Youth Best Bloom with ‘Erlicheer,’ 4 W-W.

Mary Ellen Sheridan, president of the Adena Daffodil Society, says, “Rachel and her mother Karen are a joy to us—always entering lots of blue ribbon winners, and helping set up and take down the show—an exacting task as we all know. This year Rachel also, as a fund raiser, made large yellow daffodil-shaped suckers of white chocolate to sell at the two-day show.” ✿
From the Office of the Executive Director

On July 1, I took over the job as Executive Director for the ADS. The actual transfer of the inventory, records, and other office contents did not occur until July 15. There is much to be learned and done.

Join me in saluting Naomi Liggett, of Columbus, Ohio, for her dedicated service to the Society.

During this transition phase, I ask for your patience and tolerance. We are changing to new financial accounting software, and implementing new procedures which we feel will prove beneficial to the management and operation of our organization.

I encourage you to look over the back inside cover of this issue of The Daffodil Journal and consider ordering some of these publications. One of my tasks in the coming months will be to inventory our publications and reduce our stock.

From time to time, I will post information of interest to ADS members over Daffnet. If you aren’t a member of Daffnet, I encourage you to subscribe. Go to www.daffodilusa.org, and follow the directions to become a member of Daffnet.

I aspire to do as much electronic communication as possible, to save resources. So I am asking each member to send me your e-mail address and to please keep all addresses current with your ADS Executive Director’s office. Managing our data base efficiently is a formidable task. Returned ADS Journals are costly. Please let me know if you are moving, so that we can get your Journal to you without interruption. With your e-mail address, I can communicate with you quickly and more cheaply than by snail mail.

I assure you that ADS respects your privacy. Your personal information is never traded or sold, and is only used for direct communication. So please contact me at: jager@cstel.net and provide your e-mail address. I will NEVER send or forward e-mail to you that is not directly related to ADS business. E-mail will be the best way for us to communicate, and I urge you to utilize it, rather than a phone call or snail mail.

You will find all my contact information on the inside front cover of every issue of the Journal.

I am at your service.

...From the Editor’s Worktable

Things happen. And nothing is quite the same.

Sometimes we look back and remember something we didn’t appreciate enough at the time. But how much more exciting when something comes into the daffodil world and everyone realizes almost at once, “This is incredible, and incredibly useful.”

In 1966, two years after the first ADS convention, a book was published. Actually, a softcover special issue of a magazine, the American Horticultural Society’s Daffodil Handbook. The vision and driving energy of George Lee, for 18 years the ADS Executive Director, brought together the work of 27 authors on three continents.

In one small volume, which too few of us own, we had the essentials: everything known about the daffodil from the beginning, and much of its culture, and the people who have cared.

Now we could all know.

In the 1970s, Tom Throckmorton wondered, “Why can’t we replace those vague 1a and 2b designations with letters to create an imaginative understanding of what a daffodil looks like, as in 7 WWY-YYW or 2 YYP-P?”

The ADS adopted color coding, and the RHS concurred. As an unexpected side effect, show schedules would be organized by this new classification system.

Now we could visualize, accurately, any daffodil.

Rarely, we do know almost at once what a difference an invention, a creative endeavor, will make. This spring, rumors had been swirling. Then, at a Board meeting at King of Prussia, the announcement was made that DaffSeek was up and running. Within the hour, someone with a laptop had accessed the new capability, the result of long hard work by Nancy Tackett and Ben Blake and their talented and hard-working committee.

Now anyone with a computer can call up the pictures of more than 16,000 cultivars in 8,500 pictures from hybridizers in twelve countries. And this number is growing daily.

Here are daffodils from around the globe, in brilliant accurate color, form and size. To resolve ID questions, to guide our bulb orders, or just to enjoy!

Now we can see.

Things happen. And the daffodil world is never quite the same.
