

Daffodil Festival Underway in Iran's Behbahan

By IFP Editorial Staff - January 14, 2019 - 14:04

The city of Behbahan in the east of Iran's Khuzestan Province is nationally known for its ancient Daffodil gardens.

The daffodil garden of Behbahan, which is one of the main tourist attractions of the city during winter, has already occupied about 700 hectares.

The flower can naturally be seen in the plains and foothills of Zagros Mountains in western Iran. Narcissus which has a lot more aromas than other species, is cultivated only in Behbahan.

Four different types of Daffodils have been identified in Behbahan's gardens.

Every year, the festival of Daffodil harvest is held in Behbahan, bringing all the people of Khuzestan province and tourists to the city.

Here are photos of the festival retrieved from ILNA:

Go to this website to see 24 photos

IFP Editorial Staff

<https://ifpnews.com/ifp-editorial-staff/>

The IFP Editorial Staff is composed of dozens of skilled journalists, news-writers, and analysts whose works are edited and published by experienced editors. The editor of each IFP Service is responsible for the report published by the Iran Front Page (IFP) news website, and can be contacted through the ways mentioned in the "IFP Editorial Staff" section.