From Our Visitors...

When you enter the house you feel you have been personally invited to enter every room. The house was absolutely delightful, beautifully furnished and had the feeling of being truly loved by the family which makes it comfortable and inviting to tour.

Go and be spellbound by the story of love of three ladies for their garden and the families who called this land their home.

The gardens have a wide variety of plantings for every season that follow the historical plan. The greenhouse is always gorgeous and fresh arrangements inside the house are stunning.

The gardens are breathtaking and there's no way to capture the beauty in words. I felt like a child exploring the grounds and past. I could have explored forever.

We have visited many historic homes but what makes Hills and Dales is the people. Our guide was a fountain of information and an absolute delight. She truly added to an already delightful experience and her insight made it come alive.

"In looking back over my years of being in this beautiful garden, I look out and I see all the beauty around me and it makes me wonder why I deserved all this beauty. It has been a joy to me, it's been a joy to my family and it's been a joy to many friends and strangers as well...It is so beautiful and so refreshing and so wholesome, and what a healthful life I've had working outside with the sunshine and the exercise and the companionship of most everyone who's worked here and it has been a joy every day...[it's] pulled me through some tough times and...given me hope for the future and I love it dearly."
