

ARRANGEMENT OF LIST, AND CODING SYSTEM

The list has been arranged in alphabetical order with the Division and Classification of each cultivar shown in the margin. The classification is in accordance with the Revised System recently adopted by the R.H.S. Colours are abbreviated as follows:

w—white or whitish; g—green; y—yellow; p—pink; o—orange; r—red.

For the purpose of description, the daffodil flower is divided into perianth, and corona. The perianth is described by the first letter following the number of the Division to which the cultivar belongs.

The corona is treated as having three zones: An eye zone, a mid-zone and an edge or rim. The description of the corona is separated from the description of the perianth by a hyphen and the letter then following the hyphen describes the corona colour starting with the eye zone. If however the corona is of a single colour, only a single letter of the colour code is used to describe it.

CULTURAL DIRECTIONS FOR DAFFODILS

To obtain best results, a sunny well drained plot of ground should be selected. Previous deep digging to aerate the soil is an advantage, but on no account should farm or stable manure be incorporated or used as a mulch. The use of inorganic fertilisers is not recommended, but a light dusting of bone meal before planting and during each successive winter will help bulb and flower production. The rate of application need not exceed 2 ozs. per square yard. Wood ashes or a sprinkling of sulphate of potash will help to produce intensity of colour.

The site should be made up some weeks before planting, which should be carried out in September. The bulbs should be covered with about twice their own depth of soil in average land, and rather less if the ground is heavy.

Smaller quantities of bulbs can be planted in blocks or groups in herbaceous borders, but cannot be expected to produce their best blooms if planted close to hedges, or shrubs whose roots rob the soil of its productive qualities. Nor can bulbs planted in dry, parched conditions be expected to increase well, or produce large flowers after the first year.

The daffodil requires a damp retentive soil during the period when it is making the bulb which will flower in the following season. Bulbs may be left down for several seasons without being lifted and we have good clumps which have been down for six years or more.

The large round bulb with a single nose, or a large offset will produce a finer flower than a mother bulb with several noses. After flowering seed pods may develop, and the flower heads must be removed or the development of the bulbs may be prejudiced.

Not all daffodils will produce their best flowers if grown in pots, but most white trumpets, or white and red flowers do well. On the other hand many yellow and red highly coloured flowers do not come well in pots, unless the temperature can be kept below 60°F after the buds emerge. The secret of successful pot cultivation is ample watering, good ventilation and a moist atmosphere being maintained by overhead spraying, or floor watering as the buds come into flower.

We do not recommend forcing daffodils in pots, and the best practice is to plunge the pots in cool ground (under 48°F), for eight weeks at least, and to bring the pots into the greenhouse or house using no heat except to keep away frost. Bring the pots into room temperature only when flower buds are showing. Copious watering is essential once the buds are coming clear of the bulbs and on no account should the pots be allowed to get dry.

The best way to select varieties is to see them growing and flowering. We will be glad to permit visitors to see the bulbs in flower during the Spring on Wednesday or Saturday afternoons or on other days by arrangement.

INTRODUCTION

The strength of the dollar on the international money markets results in sharp reductions in the dollar price of all bulbs offered this year and this factor coupled with a reduction in the sterling price of many cultivars makes the Irish daffodil bulb one of the few commodities unaffected by inflation this year and cheaper to buy than ever before.

The present US dollar-sterling rate is around $1.42 to the £ sterling, but for convenience we have converted sterling prices at the arbitrary rate of US $1.50 = £1 sterling, and as usual we shall add additional bulbs to compensate for any movement of the rate in favour of the US dollar.

We have been glad to hear that gratis bulbs sent out to compensate for movements in exchange rates or to make good postage charges have proved their value on the show bench. We are grateful for the many detailed reports which we have received regarding seedlings sent out for trial, and these are most helpful in deciding whether colour, particularly crown colour, is variable under different climatic conditions, and whether flowers of good substance here are not less so elsewhere. We particularly wish to know whether MOON RHYTHM, a 3y-o here, and its sister seedling 73/3A/2 (3y-yoo) show soft sulphur yellow petals or sometimes bleach out to 3w-yoo? Also, whether any of our seedlings of 2y-o, 2y-r, 2w-p and 2w-r develop deeper crown colour with maturity as they do here, eg TOLLYMORE (80/2P/1), and KILLEEN (2y-o).

The information will be of value in connection with our breeding programme.

It will be noted that several seedlings sent out in the special No. 1 and No. 2 parcels in recent years are now named.

Dated 7 February, 1984.
