*Fair Daffodils we weep to see
You haste away so soon.*

*Now blow the Daffodils on slender stalks,
Small keen flames that leap up in the mold
And run along the dripping garden walks.*

Its loveliness increases; it will never Pass into nothingness;
... and such are Daffodils.
With the green world they live in.*

It's raining Daffodils;
In every dimpled drop I see
Wild flowers on distant hills.*

Another mile stone has passed, yet it seems almost incredible that we have been growing and selling bulbs for a quarter century; true, it has not been exclusively Daffodils throughout this time, the first years of this venture having been dedicated to the Gladiolus primarily, but our interests have been centered on Daffodils over the major portion of this period. In this (shall I call it brief?) span of time many advancements have been made in the breeding of finer and more beautiful varieties of flowers so that favorites of twenty-five years ago are largely forgotten, although a few have managed through sheer merit to maintain their popularity. Certainly today's varieties far supercede in beauty those of a few years back although not all of them are endowed with a sufficiently vigorous constitution and distinctiveness to assure them of a place of permanence in view of what flowers are now growing in the hybridizer's test plots. Though they may be obsolete tomorrow, they can give us pleasure and satisfaction today. We do not defer buying a new car or building a new house because it will be a back number in a few decades from now!

Enough of reminiscing and speculating. It would be a happier world if the political scene gave as much assurance of the future as does the horticultural field but, contemplation in this sphere must be accompanied with some trepidation. In the temporal sphere there is certainly little else that can give more pleasure and satisfaction than the growing of flowers, and although there may be frequent disappointments due to inclement weather, the inroads of pests, various seasonal vicissitudes, or even in varieties not meeting up with expectations from a qualitative standpoint, it is an inherent trait of a gardener to anticipate next year's performance will surpass that of the present.

We take this opportunity of thanking all of our customers for making last year's sales exceed those of any previous season. The response to our sale of some of the varieties we wished to discontinue was gratifying, and it will be noted that a number of kinds listed previously are omitted from our list this year. As announced a year ago, it is imperative in view of rising costs, to reduce the number of varieties grown, or raise prices, as there are numbers of the less familiar sorts of which we sell far too few bulbs annually to pay for growing them. The only alternative to raising prices considerably, is deleting more varieties from our list and we again offer mixed bulbs as per their listing on page 17.

For the most part, our prices on standard kinds are little above that asked ten years ago when production and living costs were about half those prevailing now. Due to the unfavorable foreign exchange rate, and the high rate of postage to the East, where most of our bulbs go; and the fact that Northwest grown bulbs are larger and heavier, in many cases, than those produced elsewhere, it is self-evident that, unless a variety finds a fairly ready sale, it is a loss to grow it. We have made a few minor price changes this year, but new varieties, as is customary, have been reduced. The inability of Western growers to sell standard varieties at less than 20c or 25c per bulb may be questioned, and as an explanation we might cite the following: aside from the cost of the original stock, necessary equipment and labor to produce bulbs, cost of advertising, packaging materials, and postage, there are catalogues to consider, which on a basis of the percentage who order out of the number who receive catalogues, make for an expenditure of $2.00 to $3.00 for catalogue outlay on each order. We could issue only a list of varieties and prices but we know that you appreciate descriptive matter, meager and inadequate as it is. This is not made as a complaint but to inform as to our reason for not giving a complete listing of standard varieties.

Here at Daffodil Haven we engage extensively in hybridizing. This, the most fascinating part of growing flowers is time consuming, and the vast amount of detailed work which accrues to this phase of growing adds greater emphasis to the necessity of eliminating some of the named varieties from our listing.

For others interested in breeding Daffodils, and for those just interested in growing the best of the newer varieties, we prepare each season, about the first of the year, a sketch of seasonal impressions covering the last season's blooming period. These are mailed out in January to those whom we think they might interest; others requesting them may have copies while they last. Brief mention is given here and there in this catalogue as to varieties worthwhile for breeding, but in the limited space available our descriptions are brief, often to the point of monotony. While there is much variation in color, form, texture, and other qualities, written descriptions of the brevity employed here cannot picture many of the varieties so as to differentiate between them.

OUR 1952 INTRODUCTIONS

This year instead of listing our own new introductions at the beginning of our list, they are found in their alphabetical order with the other varieties: ALPINE, ARDOUR, ESTRELLITA, FESTIVITY, PINWHEEL, SACAJAWEA.

1951 Introductions include Casabianca, Chinook, Cibola, Fairy Dream, Paul Bunyan, Lemon Drops and Zest.

TERMS

Please send cash with order, or 25% down and the balance before delivery. Prices quoted are prepaid on orders of $2.50 or more except as noted on seedling bulbs by the hundred, our cut flower collection, and other bulbs offered in hundred quantities or larger. On smaller orders add 25c for postage and packing. However, for those willing to pay transportation, we will gladly include extra bulbs valued at more than the estimated cost of shipping. We can send by express collect, or in the case of small orders, send by parcel post and you remit for postage on receipt of order.

On cash orders of $10.00 or more sent before August 1st, except on collections, we will include 10% extra value in bulbs of our selection. Orders sent later than that date will be filled generously but we may not be able to give as much in extra value. In view of our prices remaining stationary on older varieties and declining on novelties, while prices of nearly everything else have about doubled, we advise ordering this year if interested in the cheaper kinds as we do not know how many of these we may list another season.

Prices quoted are for good double nose bulbs except for a few species that normally do not make many bulbs of this type. If sold out of double nose size, we endeavor to give equal or greater value in smaller good blooming sizes. We do not price round bulbs of novelties since we need these for our propagation. Ordinarily we start shipping around the first of September but we advise that you

Please send orders by September 1st if possible.

Visitors welcome at our gardens during the blooming season except on Sundays, when we are closed.

KEY TO DESCRIPTIONS

Name of variety is given first, followed by the name of the originator in parenthesis. The number and letter following is the Royal Horticultural Society classification, viz.: 1a means yellow trumpet; 2b means large cupped bi-color. Season of bloom is indicated next but this is only approximate: letters EE indicate extra early; E, early; EM, early midseason; M, midseason; LM, late midseason; L, late. Then the approximate height in inches is given. Both blooming seasons and height must be taken as only approximate relatively.

ARMADA (G. L. Wilson) 2a E. 22". A sensational giant early flower, large bold crown of intense tangerine orange-red. Holds its color well. A vigorous grower. Only two or three to spare. $18.00 each.

Only two or three to go at $25.00 each.

ASKELON (Brodie) 1c M. 19". A good quality large white trumpet of crepe-like texture. A fine flower whose name is found in the pedigree of a number of our fine white trumpet varieties. 65c each.

SEEDLINGS — GENERAL MIXTURE. From our testing grounds we always have thousands of seedlings which are not good enough to meet competition of modern varieties. Then there are selections made which show promise and are kept out for further testing. Most of these eventually prove not good enough or not sufficiently different from varieties already existing. This latter group has been put into our better mixture. Last fall we failed to plant most of the bulbs from our general mixture but those from a newer mixture are for the most part put into this group, and our newer, better selections are to be placed in the Better Mixture this year. We offer them as follows:

GENERAL MIXTURE—20 bulbs for $2.50 prepaid.

BETTER MIXTURE—12 bulbs for $2.50 prepaid.

SPECIAL OFFER
MIXED
DAFFODILS

Last year we closed out a number of older and standard named varieties by making mixtures of them. There are more varieties that we wish to discontinue this year, and some of which we have insufficient stock to list. Then there are new lots of seedlings coming on annually, which, after having taken out a few of the most promising, are put into a seedling mixture. Either named varieties or seedlings can be supplied at $7.50 per 100 for double nose bulbs, or $4.50 per 100 for round bulbs, not prepaid. If you do not care about having your bulbs named, this is a good way to get a quantity of bulbs for cutting or garden decoration at moderate prices. If you have a preference as to seedlings or named varieties (unlabeled, of course), mention your choice and we will try to oblige, but late in the season it may be necessary to supply whichever we have left.

DAFFODIL SEED

Last year for the first time we offered Daffodil seed, and although we did not sell a great amount, we found a considerable amount of interest. Inasmuch as Daffodils, unlike Gladioli, Irises, Dahlias and many other flowers, ordinarily produce only two or three blooms per bulb, and many varieties give only a half dozen seeds or less per bloom, it takes a considerable amount of time to produce any quantity of hand pollinated seed; moreover, many varieties do not bloom together, or they are not compatible, and occasionally the weather is too wet to do pollenizing while some varieties are in bloom. In the case of rare, high priced novelties, the cost of stock would make the price of seed produced by them prohibitive. However, there are some fine varieties that are reasonably good seeders and we offer seed from a few specific crosses this year. We know of no other grower doing this. Due to the uncertainty of seed production, we would appreciate permission to substitute equal value in another cross if we cannot supply your first choice. Daffodil seed takes four to six years from seed to bloom. Instructions for growing sent with seed orders. Mixed seed at 40 for $1.00. Separate crosses as follows:

A NEW DAFFODIL BOOK

There has been need for a complete, up-to-date, authoritative book of Daffodil culture, and such a volume is now available in "The Daffodil," by M. J. Jefferson-Brown. Well written and superbly illustrated, it is a comprehensive store of useful information for Daffodil fanciers, giving points on classification, culture, exhibiting, and breeding, and many other interesting facts. The chapter on Dwarf Narcissi for the Rock Garden is particularly noteworthy, and those interested in hybridizing and botanical structure and relationships among Daffodils should find the section on cytology useful. All in all, a splendid addition to any Daffodil fancier's library. We expect to keep a few copies on hand but if many orders are received, there may be some delay in replenishing our stocks from England. Price, $4.50 per copy.

PLANT SOCIETIES

There is no national Daffodil society in America, but the American Plant Life Society issues an annual, HERBERTIA, devoted to members of the Amarillas family and each issue contains articles on Daffodils, and the 1953 edition is to feature Narcissus. Membership includes payment for a copy of the yearbook. Send dues of $3.00 to E. Frederick Smith, Sec'y, Box 2398, Stanford University P.O., California.

The American Iris Society issues fine interesting quarterly bulletins. Annual membership of $3.50. Address: Franklin Road, Brentwood, Tennessee.

The American Primrose Society also publishes an instructive quarterly. Send dues of $2.50 to Mrs. Earl A. Marshall, Sec'y-Treas., 1172 S.E. 55th Ave., Portland 15, Oregon.

The American Delphinium Society has a year book and bulletins, both with interesting and practical information. Dues of $3.00 may be sent to Chas. A. Prochaska, Treas., 32 Woodbridge St., S. Hadley, Massachusetts.

CULTURAL INSTRUCTIONS

Daffodils are not difficult to grow, but like other flowers they respond to good cultural practices. Nearly any good well drained soil is suitable, and while there are somewhat divergent opinions among growers, it seems rather generally conceded that plenty of moisture during the growing season is more essential than feeding with fertilizers. A soil deficient in plant food will quite obviously not be ideal, and while a good quality bulb grown there may give a good account of itself the first year, its food reserves will be depleted and mediocre results may be anticipated in subsequent seasons.

The ground should be deeply worked before planting, and when well pulverized the bulbs may be planted so that they are covered with three or four inches of soil. If commercial fertilizer is to be used, see that it does not come in direct contact with the bulb, and use a preparation with more phosphorus and potash than nitrogen. Do not expect fertilizers to take the place of humus, and if available use compost in preference, or at least as a supplement, to chemical fertilizers.

The soil should be well drained but with plenty of moisture available preceding the blooming period if the finest blooms are to be produced. Proper cultivation is beneficial but should consist of shallow stirring of the soil and removal of weeds; deep digging near the plant tends to destroy the long feeder roots which may come close to the surface.

Daffodils should be dug and replanted every two or three years for best results. Digging may be done as soon as the foliage is mostly dead, usually in late June or early July, and bulbs may be cleaned and divided about a month later for replanting in September or October. While out of the ground, they should be kept in a cool, dry place.

While Daffodils do not take kindly to forcing, they are good subjects for pot culture provided they are potted early and given cool growing conditions. Fill pots with loam and sand mixed with peat moss or well decomposed leaves. The drainage hole should be covered with small stones, broken crockery, or charcoal to insure perfect drainage. Pots may be buried in soil or peat moss and kept moist. This should be done in September, and after two or three months, the first pots may be taken up and kept inside in a cool dark place for two or three weeks, after which they may be given more light. From then on they may be given a slightly higher temperature, but most varieties resent forcing and if given much warmth, they may fail to bloom or become leggy and lacking in attractiveness. Flowers to develop high quality should be opened slowly and kept cool after opening if it is desired to keep them very long.

It is essential that potted bulbs be watched closely at all times and be kept from drying out, as much of the success of growing good Daffodils hinges on their having plenty of moisture during their growing season. And it is quite as important that the drainage is good. Some varieties do not take kindly to growing in pots but, on the other hand, it is doubtful if some kinds ever reach the perfection grown in the open that they attain when grown in pots and opened indoors in a cool room where they are unaffected by inclement weather. Some of the white Daffodils are particularly entrancing when grown thus.

Nearly all flowers are afflicted by some pests and Daffodils are not an exception. Basal rot may damage bulbs in spots where drainage is poor or where diseased bulbs have been grown previously. In some areas, the Narcissus fly is destructive. The adult fly emerges from the ground and lays eggs around the base of the stem or foliage. These hatch and the larvae burrow into the bulb. Naphthalene flakes sprinkled at the base of the foliage two or three times from blooming season to the time the foliage dies down, or spraying with 5% DDT are suggested remedies. If any bulbs are found infected at digging time, they should be fumigated with cyanogas, or if but a few bulbs are involved, the fly larvae removed and the bulb dusted with sulphur.

CUT FLOWERS

As cut flowers, Daffodils are especially desirable both from the artistic standpoint and for the fact that they come early in the season when they can help banish the drabness left by receding winter days. It should be remembered that they are cool weather flowers and if they are cut and taken into a warm room they will last only a few days while in a cool situation they may hold up two weeks. When the weather is favorable, they not infrequently last three or four weeks on the plant. They lend themselves admirably to various types of arrangements in vases and bowls.

HYBRIDIZING

Most fanciers who are really bitten by the Daffodil "bug" cannot refrain from trying their hands at the fascinating hobby of cross pollinating some of their favorites and growing them from seed. There is perhaps no more intriguing pursuit than that of the hybridist, and the Daffodil breeder takes second place to none in enthusiasm. Growing something new and original is the privilege of every devotee of this game, but since it is very time consuming in the matter of waiting for results, one should have good quality flowers to work on. The technique of crossing flowers is very simple, being merely a matter of picking one of the six pollen bearing anthers in the center of the crown or trumpet with a small forceps, and rubbing the pollen off on the stigma (in the center and surrounded by the six anthers) of another flower. The flower from which the pollen is taken should be one just freshly opened or one which has been cut so as to avoid contamination by insects. If the flower to which the pollen is applied has had its anthers removed on first opening and it has been opened only a day or two, it is not necessary to cover the blossom as there is little danger of foreign pollen having reached it. Each flower crossed should be tagged showing the varieties involved in the cross. Seed will ripen about six or eight weeks later and these may be sown about one inch deep in early fall. They reach flowering size at from four to six years of age. While the first crosses try one's patience, if one makes new crosses each year, there will be new seedlings to watch each season after the first ones bloom. From then on, it is a matter of watching each seedling as it blooms and marking for further observation and propagation those that show promise. While thousands of Daffodils have been introduced, there is still much room for improvement in many lines. At present, many, if not most, breeders are working to get better pinks, but this is only one of many interesting lines to follow.

PRIMULA POLYANTHUS

Again this season we offer, subject to crop, a limited amount of seed of a very good strain of primroses; in fact, a combination of the strains of several leading Primrose breeders. Hand pollinated seed from a wide range of colors, including reds, bronzes, yellows, whites, pinks, blues and numerous intermediate shades, tints, and variations, in mixture only at $1.50 per packet.

ANEMONE FULGENS

Neither color illustrations nor descriptive adjectives can adequately portray the beauty of these Scarlet Windflowers, although their name, fulgens, indicates something of their fiery red coloring. Aside from their intrinsic value for brilliance and form, they are unusual in supplying such high coloring so early in the season, occasionally blooming here in the Northwest in January, but ordinarily starting to open in February and continuing until near May 1st. The color is comparable to that of the species Tulip, fosteriana, but with perhaps a bit less orange in its composition. The daisy-like flowers are 2 to 2½ inches in diameter and are borne on stems about six inches long at the start of the season with increasing height to 12 to 15 inches at the close. Splendid for cut flowers. The blooms close at night and on cloudy days but open with sunshine or when taken into a warm room. In our opinion, the finest of all anemones with which we are acquainted.

This plant grows from a rootstock which appears to be little more than a gnarled and twisted piece of dead bark. Should preferably be planted in the fall and given loose friable soil with good drainage but plenty of moisture during the growing season. Possibly not hardy in very cold sections but has withstood zero temperatures here. Where lower temperatures prevail some protection would be advisable, such as a cover of fir boughs or a cold frame. Spring planting would likely give very few blooms the first year; in fact, fall planting will not assure a maximum display until the second year. A very worth while companion to your Daffodil planting. 25c each, $2.50 per dozen.

IRIS SEED

We grow a goodly number of the best of the newer Bearded Irises and make many crosses each year among these and the best of our own seedlings. We do not offer specific crosses but can supply seed from crosses of our selection, labeled, at 25 seeds for $1.00; or 40 seeds from mixed crosses for $1.00.
