

GUY L. WILSON LTD.

Daffodil growers & hybridizers

THE NURSERY · MARDEN · TONBRIDGE · KENT · ENGLAND / TEL. MARDEN 235

22nd March, 1967

Mrs. E. Hanenkrat
266, Floyd Avenue,
Dayton,
Ohio 45415
U.S.A

Dear Madam,

We have decided that for the future it will be more satisfactory to discontinue the publication of a separate catalogue of Daffodils devoted entirely to the late Guy Wilson's collection.

Since Guy Wilson's death it has been possible to greatly increase the available quantity of his stocks since obviously we have greater facilities for growing stock in quantity than he had.

Consequently, it has been possible to make many of these fine Daffodils available at a lesser price to a much larger number of enthusiasts than hitherto, and they have therefore, been incorporated in our General Bulb Catalogue at popular prices, a step which it appeared to us to be logical to take.

Included in this catalogue will be found a section devoted entirely to the latest Novelties of the Wilson collection, both those of his seedlings which flowered after his death, and those which we have ourselves raised following his lines of breeding.

/Cont.....

Continued.

The older varieties and those of which sufficiently large stocks exist to make it possible to offer at popular prices will be found under their appropriate headings in the general section of the Daffodil portion of our catalogue. It also occurs to us that you may well be interested in Spring flowering bulbs other than Daffodils and this new arrangement offers you the advantage of both the Wilson Daffodil collection and an unrivaled collection of general spring flowering bulbs in one publication.

A copy will be mailed to you by our American Branch, which is P. de Jager & Sons Inc., Hamilton, Massachusetts, during the month of June. Meanwhile, reference as to varieties may still be made to Guy L. Wilson's 1966 Catalogue.

We think that this new arrangement will be to your benefit, a view with which we hope you will agree.

Yours faithfully,
Guy L. Wilson Limited.

