

Nancy R. Wilson, Species and Miniature Narcissus

February 2011

Dear Friends,

Jerry and I are both better healthwise and are working on our daffodils but whatever happened to Galligaskins? This nice little bulbocodium multiplied well and I had two nice pots to sell. But the bags of dug bulbs disappeared! I blamed the woodrat again. He moved out of the barn and has a big heap under a tree near by. When Galligaskins disappeared I disappointed many of you last year but have some young ones coming on. He, also, steals my plant labels. This is the luck of a gardener or is it my age? I could do a whole program on the mis-happenings of daffodil growers. You have to take these adventures with a smile. Do your best and love your flowers.
