William J. Park, President

Speaking From Experience

An important season for planting comes in the fall of the year when spring flowering bulbs arrive fresh from Holland. This is an important season at Park, too, for we specialize in bringing gardeners the better portion of the Dutch bulb crop . . . both from the standpoint of the bulb size we ship and the quality of the varieties we list. Since World War II, we've built up quite a sizeable trade among serious home gardeners who know and look for true horticultural quality. A quality that means more than adequate bulbs delivered without obvious defects.

Bigger Bulbs Grow Better Flowers

Generally speaking, the larger the bulb the more nutrients it has stored — which translates directly to the number of blossoms the bulb can ultimately support and the size of the flowers when they arrive. That's why we offer only the larger grades available to commerce — the optimum size for grand garden performance, yet realistically priced for liberal garden use. Tulip cultivars must be 12 cm. and up, Exhibition Hyacinths 18-19 cm., Bedding Hyacinths 15-16 cm., Dutch Crocus 9-10 cm. Every bulb on the list will be large for its category and worth what you paid for it.

Two Noses Are Better Than One

For daffodils that is. Which is why we promise that ours have two like the picture shows. In Dutch grading terminology, a Double Nose II has two "pods", both capable of sending up a flower shoot. Common "Advance Sale" and dime store daffodils are called "Rounds". They are smaller and produce only one flowering stem and a smaller flower. Though the smaller bulbs may (sometimes not) cost less, when you factor in the need to plant two and the extra time to do this, the daffodils we offer are an excellent

"Think Pink" Daffodil Mix

One of the most sought after colors in Daffodils is pink — but they are few and far between. Rare and blessed with an "in fashion," old fashioned charm, the six different pinks offered here remind one of the spring countryside — lush flowers in a romantic English cottage garden. Excellent with whites, yellows, and, especially, blues, our pink Daffodils are wonderful with Lily-of-the-Valley, White Bleeding Hearts, Primroses, and, lest we forget, Forget-Me-Nots. This select, hand picked mix displays and encompasses a wide variety of forms chosen to provide continuous color over a long period. With their strong stems and magnificent, long-lasting blooms, these lovely pinks are also splendid for arrangements. Flower color intensifies in cooler weather. Zones 3-8.

No Bulbs "DIRECT FROM HOLLAND" Sold Here

As a mass marketing concept it works great. As a method for getting you quality and service, it works not so great. Most bulbs are imported to the U.S. in this manner. It does an adequate job of delivering a very limited selection of bulb varieties in very large quantities. As a scheme designed for the mass market, it relies on large mechanical packing contractors in Holland. In long production runs, they process the handful of varieties offered.

However, if you're seeking something different, or the more recent flower improvements, and more personal service, "Direct from Holland" is not for you. At Park, we believe good service means stocked shelves and a staffed customer service department. Later this fall, if you need a last minute addition to your order, or if anything doesn't suit, there is someone to talk to and bulbs on hand. Both are at the same U.S. location. When you call — we respond.

So How Do We Get The Quality To You?

First, since we don't sell bulbs in commodity quantities, we deal only with the handful of Dutch growers who really care about quality. We deal face-to-face and we "walk the fields". They know us as knowledgeable customers, picky about what we pay for — like the serious gardeners who patronize us.

Second, we've designed and built the remarkable Park Facility. In all the world, it is unique for its range of climate controlled environments, each dedicated to the optimum handling of horticultural products. It is the key ingredient other suppliers of bulbs cannot match.

Third, although every bulb that reaches the U.S. is inspected by its grower, the Dutch government and the USDA, they don't define garden quality for our customers. We do it ourselves. All bulbs we ship come to you "DIRECT FROM PARK". It's OUR experienced eyes that inspect your bulbs and OUR caring hands that separate the good from the bad.

This is how we get the quality to you.

Patience Has Its Rewards

Packing bulbs without first removing the excess field moisture is the perfect recipe for diseased and rotten bulbs. Done properly, this curing process takes time — more time for larger, heavier bulbs like ours with more moisture to remove, less time for smaller bulbs. That's why the first bulbs you see each fall are smaller grades for discount house and retail distribution. What's more, we insist on growers who cure their bulbs the slow, natural way. Ours aren't roasted in heat chambers to rush desiccated bulbs to the mass market. What you get aren't the first bulbs to plant next fall, but the best bulbs to plant. Turgid and plump, they're well worth an ounce of patience on your part.

Deal With An Experienced, Top Quality Horticultural House

Although bulbs are relatively foolproof, as with all things living, there is no absolute certainty of success. Even a complete guarantee of satisfaction cannot replace a lost season in the garden. That's why we urge you to place your trust in a quality house like Park — peopled with horticulturists and fine tuned by decades of experience.

As stewards of your trust we promise the better varieties, trueness-to-name and description, larger bulbs for more and better flowers, correct curing and careful handling, freedom from disease and damage, and delivery at proper planting time with sensible planting instructions. We're here to help you grow, to bring you complete gardening satisfaction!

DAFFODIL Pink Charm

Among pink Daffodils, this is one of the finest, having a rarely found combination of color and form. Edged in rare and exceptionally vivid coral rose, Pink Charm creates a striking and spectacular late season show — often displaying two blooms on its 18-inch stems, which makes it a seldom-found pink cluster type Daffodil. Highly recommended for the front of the border, mass plantings, and for naturalizing in a woodland setting, it performs well year after year. For Forcing: Simply plant several bulbs in a pot, place in a cool (38-45° F.) area to root, then, after roots show at the bottom of the container, bring into a cool room for weeks of fragrant bloom! Zones 3-9.

PARK'S UNUSUAL DOUBLE DAFFODILS

If you're looking for durable flowers that bloom year after year with an unusual flair, try these distinctive double flowered Daffodils! In contrast to the more traditional Daffodil forms, they have many large central petals which are often interspersed with smaller petals of a contrasting color. The doubles encompass some of the largest flowers among the Daffodils and they make a spectacular show in the mid- to-late Daffodil season. All are extra-large, double nosed bulbs. Excellent for cutting and floral arrangements, for they are long-lasting and quite beautiful.

Duet. Truly spectacular, with large 4-inch flowers of ivory perianths and double cups of deep buttercup yellow, often laced with yellow or orange in the center. Borne erect on strong stems, Duet makes a tremendous impact in the garden, where it increases rapidly. Its long-lasting blooms make Duet splendid for arrangements, too. Midseason.

Canaliculatus - A delightful miniature gem

Here is beauty in small but exquisite packages . . . Daffodils, as designed by Nature, not man. They include some of the earliest and some of the latest blooming of the genus, often with intriguing and exotic form. Many are extremely fragrant — all will bloom and increase, year after year, with little or no attention. Plant them in the rock garden, combine them with wildflowers or, for exceptional beauty, combine them with primroses. We have found that many of them perform unusually well in the southernmost Daffodil Country, where their larger sisters may be shortlived. A very inexpensive way to have a spectacular display! Zones 3-8, except where stated.

Tete-a-Tete - Popular and easy-to-grow

Cyclamineus Hybrid Daffodils

Blooming exceptionally early, these small beauties extend the Daffodil season, are easy to grow, and continue to perform better each season. Their cheery blossoms with long trumpets and reflexed petals remind one of Cyclamen, hence the group's name. Their short stature and dainty size make them excellent for the front of the border and for interplanting with ground covers. Very hardy, weather resistant and splendid for forcing. Zones 3-9.

Baby Doll. You'll know spring is on its way when these hard-to-find treasures put on their welcome show. Each golden yellow trumpet accentuates the lemon yellow petals. Group them near a doorway or small corner where their petite beauty can be appreciated to the fullest. 8-10 inches.
