HINTS ON GROWING DAFFODILS

Daffodils do best in the cooler climates of Australia, where the spring rain fall is good. Daffodils will grow well in most soils, they are not gross feeders but of course the better the soil the better the flowers. To get the best out of them they want to be planted in a bed of their own, as when they die down they have not got to be watered in the summer time, as they like a spell, and if planted with other plants that need watering they don't do as good. They want to be planted about three inches deep and four inches apart.

The best manure to give them is three parts superphosphate, and two parts potash when planting, and then again just when an odd one starts to come through the ground, we find that this second dressing is the best as the potash puts a lovely colour into the flowers. They are best planted in February and March, so they get a good root hold before the cold weather sets in, they like the full sun and will not flower if grown in the shade. Lift and divide every three to five years.

All orders should have several names added as substitutes, as bookings are very heavy on some varieties, if any variety ordered has been sold out, we reserve the right to substitute with one of similar colour, which we consider as good unless otherwise instructed.

All orders $8 and over $1 bulb given free our own choice.

Cash with order and please add postage.

Parcel Post 1 dozen bulbs weigh approximately 2 lbs.

Tasmania 45 cents per 2 lbs.

Other States 70 cents per 2 lbs.
